Positions Held

Professor and Luis Leal Endowed Chair in the Department of Chicana and Chicano Studies, 2010 to the present. Chair of the Department of Chicana and Chicano Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara, January 1, 2010-June 30, 2013. In addition to my administrative duties, I also teach the graduate core course CHST 200C Social Processes, CHST 240 Colloquium Series, and CHST Special topics—undergraduate research practicum. As the Luis Leal Endowed Chair, I created the Luis Leal Memorial Lecture held every year to commemorate the passing of Don Luis Leal, scholar, writer, and one of the founders of the Chicana and Chicano Studies Program in Santa Barbara.

Professor, University of California, Santa Cruz, July 1, 1983 to 2012. Director of the Social Psychology Graduate Program March 2000-2002 and 2003-2007. Director of the Chicano/Latina Research Center 2005-2008; As professor of Psychology, I taught the following undergraduate courses—Introduction to Social Psychology, Chicana Feminisms, Latinos in the Media and the following graduate courses—Feminist Theory and Social Psychology; Survey Methods. I also supervised graduate students in the social psychology graduate program.

Professor, University of California, Los Angeles. July, 1995 to June, 1996; Psychology Department and César Chávez Center for Interdisciplinary Instruction in Chicana/Chicano Studies, Chair: Camille Guerin-Gonzalez, Ph.D. I had a visiting one-year appointment at the full professor level until July 1996 when the appointment became permanent. I taught the following undergraduate courses—Chicano Social Psychology and Latinos in the Media.

Research Director, University of California, Santa Cruz, September, 1992 to 1997; Latino Eligibility Study, Chair: Richard Figueroa, Ph.D. I was responsible for designing and executing the research agenda for the Task Force appointed by former UC President Gardner to increase the number of eligible Latino students to attend the University of California. The Task Force was appointed in 1992 and existed for four years and received a one-year extension.

Visiting Scholar, University of Michigan, March-August 1992. I was awarded the Rosa Parks, Martin Luther King, and César Chávez Visiting Scholar to lecture and teach at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Project Director, California Identity Project, University of California, Los Angeles, December 1988-July 1990. I was in charge of a statewide survey of Latino head of households in California. The purpose of the 1300 sample was to determine what this population foresees as their future in a state in which they will become the majority in the year 2000. This survey was commissioned by the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation.

Research Fellow, Language Use and Language Attitudes of the Mexican Descent Population in the United States. September 1987-June 1988. I was awarded the Research Fellowship for Minority-Group Scholars from the Rockefeller Foundation to write a monograph on language use and language attitudes among the Mexican descent population using the data from the National Chicano Survey and the 1980 U.S. Census.

Research Director, Social Identification, Political Consciousness and Language Attitudes of Chicano College Studies, Pan American University and University of California at Santa Cruz, July, 1983 to June 1984. I collected 600 questionnaires at Pan American University to examine students' attitudes toward bilingualism, level of political consciousness, and social identification. The research was supported by a grant of the Academic Senate, University of California, Santa Cruz, Faculty Research Grant.

Assistant Professor, Pan American University, September, 1982 to June, 1983; Department of Behavioral Sciences; Chair: Rumaldo Juárez, Ph.D. I was assistant professor of psychology and taught introductory psychology, social psychology, and an upper-division seminar (Contemporary Issues in Social Psychology) listed both in psychology and sociology.

Assistant Coordinator, Freshman Studies Pilot Program, Pan American University, May to July, 1983; Principal Coordinator: Sylvia Luján, Ph.D. I wrote a proposal to structure the implementation of the Freshman studies program. This program was designed to help entering students at Pan American University upgrade their skills in math and reading before starting the University curriculum.

Research Consultant, Local Election Survey; Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, March 4 to March 13, 1983; Director of Research: Robert R. Brischetto, Ph.D. I was in charge of conducting a telephone survey for the Southwest Voter Registration Project prior to the local elections in McAllen and Edinburg, Texas. The purpose of the survey was to assess voter registration rates and assess voters' opinions on key issues.

Research Associate, Minority Institutions Science Improvement Program, September, 1982 to June, 1983. Project Director: Mark Winkel, Ph.D. I helped Professor Winkel equip an experimental laboratory for social psychological research.

Assistant Project Coordinator, The National Chicano Research Network, University of Michigan, May, 1982 to August, 1982; Principal Coordinator: Carlos H. Arce, Ph.D., Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan. I coordinated the Dissertation Completion Project funded by the Ford Foundation to help advanced doctoral students complete their doctoral dissertations. The project provided advanced doctoral students with editorial assistance, statistical analysis, word processing and dorms for a period of up to eight weeks to help them complete their dissertations.

Research Coordinator, The National Chicano Research Network, University of Michigan, May, 1982 to August, 1982; Principal Investigator: Carlos H. Arce, Ph.D., Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan. I was responsible for gathering statistical, historical and ethnographic data on a small community in the Midwest--Adrian, Michigan. The purpose of the community study was to provide the Michigan state government with data for development of legislation and policy decisions. Adrian, Michigan was selected because of the sizable number of people of Mexican descent living in the area.

Research Intern, Hispanic Youth Employment Research Fellowship, National Council of La Raza, University of Michigan, September, 1981 to May, 1982; Principal Investigator: Philip García, Ph.D., Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan. I worked with Dr. García analyzing the data from the 1979 National Longitudinal Survey of Youth. We examined the lay-off and quit rates among Hispanic workers (between 16-21) as related to discriminatory wage practices.

Research Assistant, The National Chicano Study, University of Michigan, January, 1981 to August, 1981; Principal Investigator: Carlos H. Arce, Ph.D. I supervised the coding and participated in the statistical analysis of the data from the National Chicano Study. My doctoral dissertation is based on the data from this national survey.

Graduate Teaching Assistant, Coalition for the Use of Learning Skills, University of Michigan, September, 1979 to December, 1980; Project Coordinator: Hector Garza, M.P.H., Experiential Learning Component, University of Michigan. I was responsible for the development of curriculum and teaching of a seminar on the psychological aspects of illness for pre-medical students to supplement their practical experience gained in different wards of the Veterans' Administration Hospital.

Research Assistant, The National Chicano Study, University of Michigan, September, 1977 to May, 1979; Principal Investigator: Carlos H. Arce, Ph.D., Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan. During this two-year period I was involved in the development and testing of the questionnaire, the different aspects of sampling and design, and for the training of interviewers, to conduct the first national survey of Mexican descendants in the United States.

Research Assistant, Pan American University, May to August, 1977; Principal Investigator: Julian Castillo, Ph.D., Dean of the Department of Health Related Professions, Pan American University. I was responsible for writing a report on the midwife survey in South Texas to assess the feasibility of a midwife training program for that area.

Assistant Professor, Pan American University, June to July, 1977; Department of Behavioral Sciences, Department Chair: David Alvirez, Ph.D. I taught two summer courses in psychology--Introductory Psychology and Social Psychology.

Research Assistant, Midwife Survey in South Texas, Pan American University, May to August, 1976; Principal Investigator: Lorelee Philpott, School of Public Health, University of Texas. I was responsible for the development and administration of a questionnaire to midwives in South Texas.

Research Assistant, Proyecto Comprender, Pan American University, October, 1974 to August, 1975; Principal Investigator: Professor Robert T. Trotter II and Juan Antonio Chavira, Pan American University. I was responsible for field interviews with folk healers (curanderos) and for the photography and editing of a slide series from the data collected.
